

John Parker Stewart

EXECUTIVE COACH, MANAGEMENT EDUCATOR,
TEAM PERFORMANCE SPECIALIST, ORALS COACH AND AUTHOR

John Parker Stewart has over thirty years of speaking and leadership consulting experience. He travels globally teaching team leadership and change management to thousands of executives throughout the world. John coaches and provides executive development to CEOs, presidents and senior executives from Fortune 500 firms and government agencies. He was in charge of leadership development for 86,000 employees at Lockheed Corp. He started Stewart Systems in 1980.

Some of John's many achievements include receiving the American Society for Training and Development "National Trainer of the Year" (Trainer's Choice Award) for two consecutive years; designing and implementing a leadership development program at Kennedy Space Center that reduced the cost of launching the shuttle by half; coaching thousands of senior executives in Fortune 500 companies in team leadership and change management. His graduate work included studying under management guru Peter Drucker, and he wrote his thesis at Parliament in London. He has authored several books and articles on leadership and executive coaching.

John's partial client list includes: Boeing, Telstra of Australia, CSL of Hong Kong, Shell Oil of Malaysia, Citibank, Chevron, General Motors, IBM, Kennedy Space Center, Lockheed Martin, NASA, Nestle/Carnation, Raytheon, Toshiba, U.S. Department of Energy, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Xerox.

*John Parker Stewart – President and Founder,
Stewart Systems, Inc. Since 1980
Cell: 971-645-5111 Office: 503-638-1106
www.johnparkerstewart.com
jps@johnparkerstewart.com*